The Red Square
Writing

As boring as it sounds, the Red Square is one of, if not the most popular tourist attractions in Moscow.

The place itself is located in Kremlin, on the banks of the river Moscow.

As for me, I like this place because it has a lot of history behind it. For example, Lenin is "buried" there along with Stalin, the first march after the Second World War ended was held there people call it the "March/Parade of Victory". Don't forget that it's being held there every year on the 9th of May. Also you can see and talk to lots of tourists that come from all over the world to see the beauty of this place.

I guess you could say it unites us all.

I would recommend this place simply because it is a big part of our history and the history of Russia in particular. I promise that you won't regret visiting it. While you're there, you can also visit the Gorbak, which is relatively close to it. It is filled with all kinds of clothing shops, where you can buy all sorts of stuff (hoodies, trainers, dresses etc.)

To sum this up, I would like to say that you should always be interested in visiting certain historically important places, learning about them
